

Foundations of Therapeutic Touch® In Person Workshop Seattle Area

(Online also available)

Saturday, October 21: 9am - 4:30 pm (PT)

Sunday, October 22: 9am - 4:30 pm (PT)

Ever seen a friend or a pet in pain and wished you could help? Therapeutic Touch is a modern interpretation of ancient healing practices that allows you to provide effective pain relief and relaxation to both humans and animals. It is practiced in medical settings around the world as well as by non-professionals and is easily learned by anyone who wants to support another's (or their own) healing process. You will learn how to use your compassion in a very focused way that leads not only to frequent symptom relief but also to personal growth, both theirs and yours.

The workshop will feature demonstrations with participants, along with ample practice time and supportive feedback. Along the way you will learn the science and theory behind the practice, as well as how to apply it in your particular life situation.

FACULTY: Kathy Wilmering, MSW, ARNP, BC, QTTT was a long-time student of TT co-founders Dolores Krieger and Dora Kunz until their deaths. She has years of experience teaching people to heal physical and mental health challenges and has presented her work across the U.S., Canada, and the E.U. Kathy teaches with humor and clarity.

Course fee is $195.00 to learn a skill that can change your life. If you register by midnight Fri Oct. 6, the cost is $185 and you will receive a bonus practice session. Age 21 or younger, you can come for $100. Nursing contact hours are included if you'd like.
